

Luye Medical Group Inaugurated Its First High-end Obstetrics and Gynecology Hospital

October 27, 2017, reported from Yantai – Invested and established by Luye Medical Group and medically supported by Yantai Yuhuangding Hospital and South Korea’s Ellium Hospital, the OB/GYN branch of Yantai Yuhuangding hospital in Gaoxin District (also known as Yantai Luye Ellium Obstetrics and Gynecology Hospital) was officially inaugurated in Gaoxin District of Yantai and was open for business. This OB/GYN branch fills the gap of high-end OB/GYN resources in Yantai with its advanced medical specialty, equipment, service philosophy and experienced expert team and aims at cultivating its advantage of specialization, improving service quality and patients’ experience, so as to meet people’s rising need for medical services with higher quality and efficiency.

Currently, China has introduced various measures for promoting the establishment of hospitals supported by non-public players. In the 19th National Congress Report, President Xi Jinping has pointed out that Healthy China Campaign should be launched through supporting the non-public players to establish hospitals and drive the development of health industry. As a leader of medical service innovation that has devoted itself to providing excellent medical results while maintaining patients’ dignity, Luye Medical puts the health of Chinese people in a prior position and hopes to further unleash the advantage of high quality international medical resources, upholds the philosophy of putting patients at the center, provides effective service to the public and lends its hand to propel the development of health industry in China.

The operation of the OB/GYN branch (Yantai Luye Ellium Obstetrics and Gynecology Hospital) is the important practice of Chinese government vigorously promoting healthcare industry and non-public hospital development. Through introducing advanced medical technology and equipment, organizing experts in Shandong and around China and even the world, integrating modern health management philosophy and treatment model that puts the need of patients at the core and promoting one-stop designated caretaker service, the OB/GYN branch can provide comprehensive and seamless OB/GYN management as well as secure ward for new born babies, demonstrating its efforts of making itself a high-end OB/GYN hospital that is up to internationally advanced medical standards.

Furthermore, the OB/GYN branch established in-depth cooperation with Yantai Yuhuangding Hospital, a Class III general hospital, to share expertise, experience and medical service procedures, and they complement each other with resources including human resources, technology, management, platform and service, so that they could play out their potential while taking into consideration OB/GYN medical needs and make internationally advanced medical technology, management and service available to the public.

On the inauguration ceremony, the hospital director of OB/GYN branch (Yantai Luye Ellium Obstetrics and Gynecology Hospital) said, “As a medical service institution encompassing maternity services, medical beauty, and high-quality pediatrics and boasting a complete industry chain structure, this branch will ease the local shortage of high-end OB/GYN medical resources and provide ‘mothers’ with better choices for assisting childbirth, confinement and postpartum recovery service. In the future, the hospital will continue to grow so as to drive the OB/GYN medical technology development in Yantai to a better level and make reliable, effective and high-quality medical service that is internationally advanced available to more people in a more convenient way. Also, the branch is actively fulfilling its social responsibility: we sent numerous key experts on several occasions to the communities to carry out charitable treatment, answering people's health-related questions and promote relevant general knowledge. The branch also opened up OB/GYN schools to deliver lessons about professional health knowledge in this area, bringing more benefits to local residents.”
